SAYS TREATING PLANT FOR TIES IS NEEDED

tendent Mills Tells of Logging Engineer Is of the Opinion Lodgepole Pine Can Be Used by Roads.

> railroad officials are awakening to a realization of the value of lodgepole pine for ties and telegraph poles, Logging En-gineer Daniel F. Seerey of the Fourth district forestry service is of the opindistrict forestry service is of the opinion that a plant for applying the pre ion that a plant for applying the pre-servative treatment to this timber will be established in the intermountain coun-try in the near future. The only plant of the kind now located in this terri-tory is operated by the Union Pacific railroad at Laramie, Wyo.
> After an exhaustive study of the sub-ject, Engineer Seerey has issued the following announcement with regard to his findings:

is findings:

The erection of a large treating plant in this section, similar to those operated by som of the castern railroads, will save the intermountain toads thousands of dollars annually.

roads, will save the intermountain roads, will save the intermountain roads obtous annually. At the present time most of the intermountain roads obtain their supply from the coast, having to pay freight rates over other roads or having to pay the cost of hauling them over their own lines.

The result is that these ties cost at local points from 10 cents to 30 cents per tie more than the local timber would cost at the same points. The location of a treating plant in this section would make it possible to utilize a great amount of lodge-pole pine timber which grows in northern Utah, southern Idaho and western Wyoming.

Not only is there a great amount of local lodgepole pine available, but other species suitable for railroad material is found in abundance. This timber is mainly Douglas fir and Englemann spruce. The local Douglas fir is superior to the coast fir in its durability as railroad ties and does not require a preservative treatment before use. On the watershed of the south fork of the Snake river with its many tributaries there is sufficient timber of Douglas fir, Englemann spruce and lodgepole pine to supply the railroads of the Intermountain country for practically an indefinite period and it cannot be many years before some of the railroads take action to avail themselves of this vast supply of excellent timber.

The logging engineer contends that recent tests made by the forest service in Montana show that by the use of lodgepole pine poles, with treated butts, a saving of 50 cents per pole per year could be realized over the cost of cedar poles now generally used for telephone and telegraph systems.

PREDICTS GOOD CROP.

forticultural Inspector Says Peaches Will Be of High Quality.

pecial to The Tribune. OGDEN, Aug. 10.-That the carload output of peaches for Weber county this season will exceed by 50 per cent that of last year is the belief of R. N. Rasmussen, county horticultural inspector, who declares that the outlook for Utah fruit this season was never better. In addition to the excellent prospects for an humense crop and a good market, the county official contends that the fruit, especially peaches, will be of a very high quality, insuring an ample supply of high grade fruit for shipping as well as canning in the local plants.

"The apricot crop this year was better than we have experienced for many years past." said Mr. Rasmussen today, "and there seems to be nothing in the way of harvesting the largest crop of fine peaches for many years past. In one or two localities some of the older peach trees have developed a fungus which produces a small brown spot on the fruit, but it is nothing serious.

"With regard to the apples we will have an unusually large and clean fruit this season. I want to warn the apple growers, however, that now is the time to go after a new crop of coddling moth. The growers did excellent work in the early part of the season, but there is a new crop of coddling moth. One of the principal reasons for the in-

SULZER WILL FIGHT

Annual Meeting of Directors Split in the Frawley Committee on Advisability of Attempting Impeachment.

By International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 10 .- Articles of impeachment declaring Governor Sulzer unfit to hold office of trust in New York state, were drafted today by legislative leaders in conference with Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for the Frawley committee at Saratoga.

Governor Sulzer will exert every possible force in resisting removal, and as his first move will issue a statment tomorrow answering charges before the Frawley committee. Louis Marshall, the governor's chief adviser, stayed at the executive mansion tonight.

The Frawley committee has split on the advisability of bringing impeachment proceedings. The majority favors impeachment, and the committee report will carry that recommendation, but the minority advocates prosecution with no action by the legislature.

These were the developments in the scandal involving the governor's alleged misuse of part of his campaign funds in Wall street stock gambling.

The split in the committee was significant, the minority claiming that impeachment would fail because under Sulzer's call for the special session of the legislature no mention was made of the inquiry, and therefore the Frawley committee is illegal.

After a long conference tonight with some of his close political advisers Governor Sulzer issued a short statement denying absolutely that he ever used campaign funds for speculative purposes. He says he never heard of the stock brokerage firms of Fuller & Gray and Boyer & Griswold, alleged transactions with whom figured largely in the testimony before the Frawley legislative committee, until these names were brought out before the committee.

The governor admits he did apply certain campaign contributions to his personal use, but adds that he made the amount good. He also admits having transactions with the stock brokerage firm of Harris & Harris, but insists that his account with this firm was not speculative and consisted of a loan on stock and collateral. He denies that he ever speculated in Wall street.

The statement was given out by Chester C. Platt, the governor's secretary. Among those present at the conference were Louis Marshail, John Hennessy, Louis A. Sarecky and Mr. Platt.

Not even a thank you, sir, and the stenog-LAD LOSES HIS LIFE rapher is so sorry for him she doesn't know what to do.

She has written to tell me all about it. "I'm no sentimental girl," says the stenographer, "I've seen something of life, and this man is the fourth one I've known who had just such a time with his wife.

"They've told me all about it and asked me to go with them. I used to do it, but now I'm engaged and I can't, but I'm sorry for this one, just the same. Why will wives be so foolish, so short-sighted? Can't you give them some good advice?"

How nice of you, you good stenog-rapher, and how silly of the wives. I've heard such a lot about those wives, I've been hearing about them for years.
Sometimes men tell me about them Sometimes nien tell me about them and sometimes the other woman tells me—the woman who feels sorry for the men and goes out with them herself, just out of gentle pity.

I wish I could see one of these wives myself, but I never have. Isn't it odd?

I know hundreds and hundreds of married women, but I've never heard one of them compaling about her has one of them complain about her hus-band teasing her life out to go places with him. Maybe they are sensitive about it and don't like to mention it. All the wives I know who talk about their busbands at all say that the one fearful fight of their lives is to get husband to stir out of the house.

Theaters he hates, bridge he abomi-nates; musicales he'd rather go to the dentist's than he found dead at a musidentist's than he found dead at a musi-cale. Lunch downtown, he's always too busy; dinner at a hotel, he hates the very thought of it, so noisy, so crowd-ed, so bright and glary, and so many silly women peacocking around in fine feathers, so many stupid men drinking and smoking right in his very face.
He's tired of it; all he wants is home,

Sometimes they cry out it. I've seen them do it.
